

Overview

The feeling of accomplishment and pride that comes with reaching the peak, and being rewarded with such an incredible view, is one that you'll carry with you for the rest of your life.

Mera Peak is a trekking peak with an altitude of 6,476 metres (21,247 ft) located in the Mahalangur Himalayan range and the Makalu Barun National Park in Nepal. Mera Peak climbing is a challenging and high-altitude experience, but it offers exceptional panoramic views and an enjoyable climbing experience. Mera peak is the highest trekking peak among the 27 trekking peaks in Nepal, and the peak climbing permit is issued by the Nepal Mountaineering Association.

The Mera Peak climbing trail takes you through a variety of terrains, from lush forests to high-altitude snow and ice. The journey typically starts with a flight from Ramechhap to Lukla or Kathmandu to Phaplu, followed by several days of trekking through beautiful valleys and remote villages. As you ascend higher, you'll pass over glacial moraines and cross high passes, all while taking in incredible views of the surrounding mountains and valleys.

Since the first ascent of Mera Central on May 20, 1953, by Col. Jimmy Roberts and Sen Tenzing, Mera Peak climbing has become famous all over the world. The actual climb of Mera Peak usually involves several days of ascending on gradual steep snow and ice, using mountaineering equipment such as crampons, ice axes, and ropes to navigate the terrain.

At the summit, you'll be rewarded with breathtaking panoramic views of some of the highest peaks in the world, including Mount Everest, Lhotse, Makalu, and Cho Oyu.

Overall, Mera Peak climbing requires a well-acclimatized, physically fit, and endurance climber, but it does not require prior experience with mountaineering techniques. However, with the help of an experienced guide and the right equipment, it is an achievable and unforgettable adventure for those with a sense of adventure and a love for the mountains.

The Mera Peak climbing itinerary that we have brought to you is 20 days long, including acclimatization and contingency days. In addition to climbing Mera Peak, you will also have the opportunity to visit the UNESCO World Heritage sites located in the Kathmandu Valley through this customized tour offered by Himalayan Diamond Adventure.
